Alberta Premier Urges Credit for Farmers

Wants Protection to Include the Western Farmer

Business men of eastern Canada must extend credit to the farmers of the west in these times of adversity so that he can rehabilitate himself, Hon. J. E. Brownlee, Premier of Alberta told members of the Canadian in Montreal at luncheon Monday. Premier Brownlee made the prediction that as wheat had led the downward price movement, wheat would lead the way in the upward trend to better times. "I believe there is a wide belief today there must be a protective tariff in order to benefit the great manufacturing industrial centers in Ontario and Quebec," Premier Brownlee said. "So you will find the better thinking people of Western Canada prepared to sit down with the financial and mercantile interests to study the question on its merits."

"The only thing we asked in return is that you will remember there is another industry making almost as much contribution to the national wealth. See if in some way there may not be a combination of the two which would lead to the mutual satisfaction of east and west—that is protection of manufacturing to the extent necessary in Western Canada and opening up markets for our products of Western Canada."

Don't forget the concert in Gordon Memorial on Friday evening, Dec. 11th.

Members of the Brick & Coal football club are putting on a white drive and dance in I. O. O. F. Hall on Friday, Dec. 18th.

J. Delinks, of the Bowell district, shipped a car load of good horses to Prince Edward Island last week and another car to Saskatchewan this week.

Keep in mind "The Red Mill," staged in the Empress theatre by Medicine Hat opera society on Friday and Saturday of this week and Saturday matinee.

The general monthly meeting of the local Legion will be held in the club rooms on Sunday, December 13th at 8 o'clock in the afternoon. As election of officers will take place at this meeting a full attendance is urgently desired.

SCHOOL NEWS

A regular fire brigade has been organized at the school and different high school boys drilled off to look after fire-hoses, doors, and indoors. Both hoses were tried out last week and found to be in good working order. The building was cleared in 46 seconds.

The high school literary society is making arrangements for a high class social function to take place at the end of the school term, December 23. Formal invitations will be issued in the next few days.

Christmas examinations are now being held in all units of high school work. Results will be announced in the Review at the end of the term.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE AGAINST HAT MAN

William Bell, of Medicine Hat, was arrested on a charge of man slaughter last Monday, following the death of his wife, Clara Maud Bell, aged 54 years.

From the evidence at the coroner's inquest it appears that Bell and his wife had a quarrel and after the altercation Mrs. Bell became seriously ill and was taken to the hospital where she died shortly after.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was that "the deceased came to her death from peritonitis induced by some cause which the jury found itself unable to determine from the evidence."

At the preliminary hearing after the coroner's inquest, Bell was remanded for trial at a higher court.

The Review is informed that Mrs. Bell at one time lived in the Bowell district.

At the Chicago Exposition this morning Trelle, of Wembley, Alberta, was again pronounced the world's wheat king. He won first prize for Durum wheat. Ten out of eleven different kinds of grain exhibits were won by Canadian farmers.

STRONG POSITION Imperial Bank of Canada 57th Annual Report

REVIEWS CANADIAN BUSINESS

Mr. Frank A. Ralph, President.

aid, in part:
Since the last annual meeting we have put in a year of some unusual, but thanks to careful management and good fortune, the bank has come through remarkably well, as the statement presented to you today will show, and which I am satisfied will meet your approval.

A New Empire Policy.
Great Britain's a gallant struggle to maintain the gold standard, but the 30th of September last she very wisely dropped the gold standard, and severed European countries followed her lead. It is especially gratifying to see that the British Government, which has recently empowered the Board of Trade to put into effect a tariff policy for British India, has also indicated that British Dominions will have 100 per cent. preference over foreign countries, a bold and courageous policy, which we Canadians should appreciate.

It is to be hoped that some policy of our debts will take place which should work out to the advantage of both the creditor and debtor nations. The recent proposals by Washington indicate a definite move in this direction.

Tide Has Turned.
These last few weeks have seen an increase in the price of commodities, especially grain and silver. Quite a number of our customers have taken advantage of this increase, and some of the tide has now turned, and while the upward move has slowed and irregular, it is now better than the violent fluctuations which took place in 1929-31.

It seems difficult to think that prices will be maintained at the level of the present. Perhaps the greatest danger will be in and in restoring better times in confidence. It is interesting to note that the press throughout the country is talking confidence and optimism, and this, in our view, will be helpful.

No Bank Failures in Canada.
Let us say a word here about the Canadian chartered banks. They have all been successful, and we are proud of them, which they have been very fortunate to be.

I think, it is particularly fortunate in our banking system, that we have been a single failure in ten years, and they have served the public well. The addresses at the recent annual meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association were very heartening.

Agriculture Foremost.
Agriculture still forms the largest item in connection with our export trade, and a favorable balance of trade depends largely upon the export of agricultural products.

The increase during the last year in the price of wheat will be a great blessing to the farmers in our Western Provinces. Canada had a most unfortunate experience in 1929 which has been a lesson to us all.

A large carry-over. In 1926 we had a carry-over of about 35,000,000 bushels. In 1929 we had a carry-over of approximately 112,000,000 bushels. It is unfortunate that this carry-over of grain at low prices should maintain, but it is being kept in mind, and we are confident we can keep ourselves in a sound liquid position.

Burden of Taxation.
The burden of taxation is really very heavy upon us, especially under the present conditions. It is to be hoped that our Government, especially Federal, Provincial and Municipal will be considerably reduced.

In conclusion, may I say that the upturn, I believe, has come—that what we need is confidence, courage and shifting faith in Canada and ourselves.

St. James Woods, Vice-President.

We have been passing through one of the difficult periods in the history of our country. Canada, in common with all lands, has been in a trough of depression, partially brought about by the abnormal deflation in the price of commodities and the difficulty of adjusting production to the demand.

But, as the abnormal deflation gives place to the normal, the conditions of today give place to a gradual return of the world at large to a state in which there will be enough to spend for all.

Financial Strains Stand Up Well.
We may congratulate ourselves that the financial structure of Canada has been well in a time of severe strain. Your Bank, the Imperial Bank of Canada, like the others, has known how to care for the interests of depositors and shareholders, and at the same time have the needs of trade and industry. As a country, we are fortunate in the moral character of our industries and resources. We have Canada's resources at our disposal, and we are confident that our conditions would be one of great difficulty. Since that time, we have seen a remarkable expansion of mining and pulp and paper manufacture, in addition to the establishment of a great number of industries to serve the home and foreign markets. This industrial development, in its variety, is, in some measure, an insurance against outside depression.

Advancing Commodity Prices.
The advance in commodity prices in certain lines is bound to be helpful to Canada. As a great wheat-producing country, increased wheat prices mean much to us, for Canadians can scarcely expect prosperity until the farmer can sell at prices that show a profit sufficient to permit something more than the minimum requirements of life. As Canada ranks third in the silver-producing countries of the world, any substantial rise in the price of silver will be a factor, ensuring prosperity to this country.

Our President has told you what my friends have told me more than a year, that this is the last occasion on which I shall have the pleasure of attending the Annual Meeting of the Bank. I am not returning from business, but I have taken a holiday, and I am, as you know, no longer the fact that I have missed only three meetings of the Board of Directors in the last three years, while, in the last year, all the meetings were attended, and at no one should be allowed to hand over to others the burden of a public institution. My association with the Board and staff of the Bank has been so pleasant that I had them farewell with very great reluctance.

aid, in part:
Last year I made some expressions of a hopeful nature, which, I am sorry to say, have not been fully fulfilled. The year just closed has been, perhaps, the most difficult in our history. I am glad to see the General Managering ten years ago. Throughout the year there was nothing but a steady decline in commodity prices and bond values, but business generally has been maintained, and I am glad to see the background I venture to hope that the statement which is in your hands tonight will be considered entirely satisfactory.

Although the current year has not yet closed, in my opinion, shows that the year's figures, in fact we have to go back to 1928-29, in our opinion, shows that the Bank's business and position have been maintained, and that the Bank's position is as strong as ever before. In common with other banks, we omitted the payment to the shareholders for the year 1930-31, in common with all holders of Government and Municipal securities but in no way anything else in our portfolio.

As a result of the year's operations, we have been able to do by making use of the amount that would have gone to pay the loan, and adding to it other contributions. The year's earnings have been forward a small increase of $21,563 in the year's earnings, and the Bank's assets have grown to $761,500. The usual reserve of the Bank has been taken care of in the year's operations.

Self Government For India is Still Aim

Declaration Made by MacDonald at Close of Conference

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald closed the second Indian Affairs Conference on Tuesday with a declaration that the work of arranging self-government for India would be continued. Mr. MacDonald outlined the policy if the National Government towards the Indian people, offering the Indian people responsible federal government with safeguards applying to the army and to external affairs. It was the same policy as that formulated by the Labor Government last year.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR DRAMATIC FESTIVAL

The program for the next dramatic festival was completed this week with the official entry of Gordon Memorial and St. Ambrose churches, who have united for the purpose of the production of one play. The three entries now are: the Rebekah Lodge, the School and the combined churches. Each organization taking part in the festival will receive one third of the net proceeds, the churches to be combined as only one entry. Fund-raised by the students will be spent on the purchase of sporting equipment for the school. Further details of the festival will be announced later.

THANK OFFERING AT GORDON MEMORIAL

The W. M. S. of Gordon Memorial Church held their annual thankoffering meeting on Monday evening. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Mr. Gordon of Medicine Hat, who held the audience, both old and young, spellbound for over an hour, as spoke of life in India. The offering, mite boxes and collections put the ladies over the top with their allotment.

HAT DRUGGIST IS GAGGED AND ROBBED

Gagged and bound to his chair at the point of a revolver, B. F. Souch, proprietor of a drug store in Medicine Hat, was robbed of $415 in cash, by two harked men at about 9:30 last Saturday evening. Thirty-five dollars were rifled from the cash register in the store. The balance was taken from the safe. The bandits ignored two cheques valued at $60 and $15, throwing them to the floor after perusal. The thieves portrayed no excitement and in a good hour's escape.

BRITISH DUTY DOES NOT EFFECT CANADA

By a sweeping majority of 317, the British House of Commons Monday night passed the government resolution authorizing a duty on fresh fruits, early vegetables, flowers and bulbs. It was introduced by Sir James Gilmour, Minister of Agriculture, who announced Canada and other dominions would receive a full exemption.

Extra subscriptions to the National Service Loan amounted to more than $215,000 when the books were closed yesterday.

Legion Auxiliary Have Successful Event

Put on Whist Drive and Dance Last Friday Evening

There was a good attendance at the Legion Auxiliary whist drive and dance in I. O. O. F. hall last Friday evening. The whist drive proved most interesting and exciting. The ladies first prize, which was a picnic ham, was won by Mrs. R. S. Further, and the dress shirt, which was the gent's first prize, was won by Mrs. Iram and Mrs. Moore tied for the ladies' second prize, and after a cut Miss Moore won the big box of chocolates. The cigarette lighters, which was the gent's second prize, was won by Cyrus Pow. Consolations went to Mrs. K. Johnson and Mrs. L. Cahoon. Both prizes were a half pound of tea.

After cards the room was cleared of tables and the dance commenced. Refreshments were served at midnight. On the whole the evening was a great success.

ALBERT PLANS FOR TURKEY EXPORTS

Indications are that Alberta's Christmas needs in the way of turkeys will be more than taken care of by the domestic producer, according to officials of the Agricultural Department. Not only will the domestic and local shipping markets be supplied, but there will be available a large number for shipping to other points. The winning of the grand championship in turkeys at the recent Royal Winter Fair at Toronto has sent the stock of Alberta birds soaring and many orders are being received for supplies from outside points.

Tickets are going quickly for the concert in Gordon Memorial on Friday, Dec. 11th. Be sure to get one early and avoid disappointment. Everyone will be there to see the young people in their several specialties. The program will be well worth seeing. Don't miss it.

The Hudson Bay Route

The recent successful voyage of the steamer "Fairweather" from Churchill to London, England, loaded with the first cargo of wheat from Western Canada, was a triumph, and which voyage was made in the short space of sixteen days, marks an epoch in Canada's maritime history.

It is true that vessels have passed in and out of Hudson Bay every year for more than a century; it is even true that two rival navies entered the Bay, fought a battle there and sailed out again. It is also true that the success attending the voyage of the "Fairweather," and its sister ship, the "Warlock," was an outcome fully expected by Western people. The importance of this venture lies in the fact that it provides the final demonstration to Eastern Canada and the world that the West's belief in the feasibility of the Bay route, and its demands, extending for fifty years back, for the construction of the railway to the Bay were fully justified.

It has been proven that the Bay route can be made a commercial success; that the 1,000 mile shorter route from the heart of the grain growing provinces to the centre of the Empire is a practical route. But the fast, safe trips of the "Fairweather" and "Warlock," through what had for years been regarded as the "frozen North," are not in themselves sufficient guarantee that the new route will become the important factor it should be in the economic history of Western Canada.

The Hudson Bay route is 1,000 mile shorter than any other route; it is feasible; it is practical; it can be made a success. But, in order to be a complete success and to provide an adequate outlet for the people of Canada, for the $300,000,000, more or less, expended on the railway, the port terminals, and for navigation aids through the straits, other things are essential. Unfortunately, some of these matters are tangled up in the controversial of rival policies of political parties. With these rivalries this question has no concern, but, speaking for the West, it must be said without any qualification that they cannot, must not be allowed to hamper the success of the Bay route.

Among the things now essential to the success of the route are:

(1) The lowest possible rates of freight on both outgoing and incoming shipments over the Hudson Bay railway, and this means the application of all its tariff of the Crown's Nest Pass schedules to the Hudson Bay railway.

(2) The lowest possible rates of insurance on both vessels and cargoes utilizing the Bay route and the port of Churchill, such removal of existing obstacles to any vessel in such rates charged over and above those obtaining on other routes until experience demonstrates what the proper rates should be.

(3) The removal of any existing obstacles to the freest possible passage and entry of merchandise and products of all kinds from the more easterly sections of Canada and the markets of Europe into Western Canada by means of the Bay route and the port of Churchill, such removal of existing obstacles to any vessel in such rates charged over and above those obtaining on other routes until experience demonstrates what the proper rates should be.

(4) Finally, it is important that certain branch lines of railway be built in the West which will have the effect of connecting up existing lines in the shortest and most direct way possible with the Hudson Bay route. This can be done in the majority of cases with comparatively short cut-offs.

Some people advocate making Churchill not only a national port, but a free port. That may or may not be feasible, but it is certain that it would have an effect on the whole financial and economic systems of the Dominion, although unquestionably it would give a great boost to the Bay route and make its success assured.

The point of this is, however, is just this: The Hudson Bay route can, we believe, be made to realize the dreams of western people; it can be made a financial success as well as a great economic and commercial enterprise. The opportunity and the power of such removal of existing obstacles to any vessel in such rates charged over and above those obtaining on other routes until experience demonstrates what the proper rates should be.

Upset Telegraph Service

East African Nations Used Wires For Personal Arguments

Telegraph wires, in varying lengths, attached here and there to otherwise zealous children, means call to the natives of Tanganyika and Kenya, East Africa, and as a result the capital was without wire service to the coast for more than 24 hours.

The demand for wire for sartorial purposes exceeded the available non-commercial supply, so the natives cut telegraph lines about 24 miles from Mombasa and took what they wanted. Cable messages had to be sent to Mombasa, and thence to the coast, until the damage was repaired. The delay was 16 hours.

Life Insurance in Canada

Per Capita Record Surpassed Only by United States

A statement issued by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau shows that in the first nine months of the present year a total of $397,225,000 of new paid-up ordinary life insurance was sold in Canada and Newfoundland.

This hardly indicates that Canada is broke.

What it does indicate is that if Mr. Donnelly were required to find an internal man he ought to have no difficulty in raising an amount up to $397,225,000.

Incidentally, speaking of life insurance, the total of insurance in force in Canada at the present time is $650,000,000, or $650 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. It is per capita record surpassed by only one country in the world, the United States—Ottawa Journal.

NEIGHBORS TALK

"I am employed in a theatre and it is a problem to make ends meet, as my husband is my mother-in-law's sister. I like to dress well but haven't the money to do so. I have to get the appearance of variety to my friends without a change in my dress as they are so busy for dress and as they go to the theatre, I have always gotten such perfect results that my neighbors think I am the great mistress of new things I have."

Auditorium For Winnipeg

Federal Government Will Share In Cost of Construction

Approval by the special sub-committee of cabinet on unemployment relief of $1,250,000 additional expenditure for the Province of Manitoba, including the Federal Government's share in the cost of construction of a new auditorium in the City of Winnipeg, was announced by Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, and chairman of the sub-committee.

Federal Government commitments for the Province of Manitoba are now upward of $2,500,000 as compared with $900,000, which was the Federal allotment for Manitoba last year in addition to the necessary direct relief on an equal three-way basis between the cities, province and Dominion.

TOO FAT AT 22

Lost 19 lbs.—And Backache

"I am 22 years of age, and I weighed 120 lbs. I had pains in the back and head, I didn't care about anything. When my doctor told me I was too fat, I decided to lose weight. I tried Krusen's Salt, six months ago. I have lost 19 lbs. and I feel like a new woman, so I am very thankful to Krusen's Salt."

The condition which caused this woman to put on weight was also the cause of her backache and headaches. The whole trouble was due to the internal organs failing to expel from the body, regularly and completely, the waste products of digestion. The six salts of Krusen assist the internal organs to perform their functions properly—in three or four days the waste is expelled. This, then, is the cause of the backache and headaches. The whole trouble was due to the internal organs failing to expel from the body, regularly and completely, the waste products of digestion. Russia and Germany

Says He Has Good Reason For Not Stirring Up Revolution

For once the Soviet Government of Russia has been content to play with fire in a powder house. On every earlier occasion when Russia's neighbor, Germany, pushed forward a difficult financial situation, Russian agents were busy in Hamburg, Dresden, Berlin, and other cities, attempting to stir up revolution. But now, when Russia has apparently kept hands off, and one of the dispatches from Moscow suggests that Russia's chief interest today is in the five-year plan. It is this plan is to be carried out by the Soviet Government in order to build up credit with the rest of the world.

Must Ensure Safety First

Greater Need For Present Time Than Ever Before

"With the super-highways and the marginal roads that are being built around cities, normal speeds of 50 to 70 miles per hour or more will without doubt be possible." Such is the prediction made recently by an authoritative engineer. The roads are killing more than 30,000 persons annually in the United States. Nearly half of the victims are pedestrians. More than 600,000 persons were injured in automobile accidents last year. About one-third of them were pedestrians. An automobile creeping slowly along does not crash into trees and fences as a rule. An automobile creeping slowly along does not knock down pedestrians as a rule. The need of the present is not more speed, but more safety. Any attempt to get more speed before we get more safety means not progress but madness.

Not Much Fun

British Postal Notes

Post Office Department Says British and Irish Free State Postal Orders No Longer To Be Cashed

Due to the depreciated British pound, orders have been issued by the post office department that British and Irish Free State postal notes are no longer to be cashed. The order does not apply to post office money orders.

The explanation given at Ottawa is that postal notes are settled with London on a different basis to money orders, and involve the risk of exchange fluctuations. In any circumstances, the Canadian post office authorities have been inclined to the view that circulation of British and Irish Free State postal notes should cease in Canada and the present chaotic exchange situation appears to provide a suitable occasion for bringing the change of policy into effect.

These governments, however, on advice from Ottawa, have now ceased to issue postal notes for Canada, and will issue only money orders hereafter. The money order, it is stated here, does not involve any exchange risk.

The British exchange situation has been reported on the circulation in Canada of British bank notes. The pound and ten shilling notes, it is stated, are no longer being accepted by many of the Canadian banks.

Cancer Clinic

Saskatchewan Training Advanced Steps In Control Of Cancer

As a further step in the campaign of the Saskatchewan Cancer Commission, a government training clinic will shortly be established in Regina and Saskatoon. The commission has established a fund for the purchase of and use of radium for cancer and other malignant diseases. Definite date for the opening of the clinic has not been decided.

A supply of radium will be located at the clinics and will be housed in an especially constructed vault. Radium emanations will be secured from the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon. All those who think they have the disease will be examined free of charge if necessary.

Persian Balm is a sheer delight to use. Cools and relieves irritations caused by weather conditions. Improves the complexion and beauty of the complexion. Fragrant and velvety smooth. Never leaves a "sticking" stickiness. Swirls absorbed by the tissues and stimulates the skin. Persian Balm is the perfect toilet requisite. Every woman will appreciate the safety distinctive charm achieved by the use of this magical lotion.

Millets Doctor Thinks He Has Discovered Cause Of Baldness

If your head looks more like a billiard ball than a hairdresser's advertisement, it may only be a sign that your anterior pituitary gland is off its feed.

The University of Illinois research and education hospital let it be known that it is continuing experiments started by Dr. W. Norman Bengtson of Maywood, Ill., on what causes baldness.

Dr. Bengtson accidentally discovered, one day, that a new growth of hair was growing on the head of a woman to whom he was giving glass hair splatters in treatment of her tendency to overweighth.

Dr. Bengtson considers that the anterior pituitary gland at the base of the brain regulates the growth of hair. One of his subjects, his records show, a man of 58, bald for two years, who developed a complete head of gray hair which eventually turned black after several months' treatment.

Harmful Radio Activity

Theory Advanced That Fat Products Cells Of Body From Inroads

Evidence that thin sheets of fat protect living cells of the body from harmful electrical activity has been discovered at Purdue University.

This electrical activity is ionization, radiation in which various electric particles spread about like dust. The electrical dust is so widespread that possibly no particle of living matter is for long out of contact with it. It is caused by radio-activity and many other phenomena.

One difference between life and death appears in the reaction of cells to these stray ions. They permeate dead cells but the living possess some unexplained power of resistance. The ions do not get inside while life lasts.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

MARGARET FIEDLER

Author of
"The Golden Rule of the Herald"
Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

"Thank God!" she heard him mutter. Then, aloud, reassuringly: "I've got my end of it all right. Now, you catch hold of the strap and raise yourself a little so that I can reach you."

Jean obeyed. A minute later she felt his arms about her shoulders, underneath her armpits, and then, very slowly, but with a sure strength that took from her all sense of fear, he drew her safely up beside him on to the high ground.

For a moment they both rested quietly, recovering their breath. The Englishman seemed glad of the respite, and Jean noticed with concern the rather drawn look of his face. She thought he must be more played out than he cared to acknowledge.

Across the silence of their fatigue their eyes met—Jean's filled with a wistful solicitude as unconscious and unadvised as a child's, and the other, brilliant and incalculable—and in a moment the silence had become something of emotional significance, the revealing silence which falls suddenly between a man and woman.

At last, "This is what comes of stealing a day from Mrs. Grundy," commented the man dryly.

And the tension was broken. He sprang up, as though anxious to maintain the recovered atmosphere of the commonplace.

"Come! Having shot her bolt and tired ineffectually to down you in a ditch, I expect the old lady will let us get home safely now. We're through the worst. There are no more tricks between here and the hotel."

It was true. Anything that might have split danger was past, and it only remained to follow the beaten track up to the hotel, though even so, with the wind and snow driving in their faces, it took them a good half-hour to accomplish the task.

Monsieur and Madame de Varigny, a distracted "maître d'hôtel," and a little crowd of interested and sympathetic visitors welcomed their arrival.

"Mon dieu, mademoiselle! We're so glad to see you back!" exclaimed Madame de Varigny. "We ourselves are only newly returned—and that, with difficulty, through this terrible storm—and we arrive to find that none knows where you are!"

"Me, I made sure that mademoiselle had accompanied Madame la Comtesse," asserted Monsieur Vautrin, nervously anxious to exculpate himself from any charge of carelessness.

"We were just going to organize a search-party," added the little Count. "I, myself—stoutly—should have joined in the search."

Wary as she was, Jean could hardly refrain from smiling at the idea of the diminutive Count in the role of gallant preserver. He would have been considerably less well-qualified even than herself to cope with the drifting snow through which she shied, dogged strength of the Englishman had brought her safely.

Indistinctly she turned with the intention of effecting an introduction between the latter and the Varignys, only to find that he had disappeared. He had taken the opportunity presented by the little ferment of excitement which had greeted her safe return to slip away.

She felt oddly disconnected. And yet, she reflected, it was no like him—the concept of him which she had formed, at least—to evade both her thanks and the enthusiasm with which a recital of the afternoon's adventure would have been received.

CHAPTER VI. The Magic Moment

Jean, surprisingly revived by a hot bath and a hot drink, and comfortably tucked up beside the fire in her room, was recounting the day's adventure to Madame de Varigny.

It was a somewhat expurgated version of the affair; that she outlined—thoughtfully calculated to allay the natural apprehensions of a temporary chaperon in which the unknown Englishman figured innocently as merely having come to her assistance when, in the course of her afternoon's tramp, she had been overtaken by the blizzard. Of the stolen day, snatched from under Mrs. Grundy's enquiring nose, Jean preserved a discreet silence.

"I don't know who he could be," she pursued. "I've never seen him on the ice before; I should certainly have recognized him if I had. He was a lean, brown man, very English-looking—that sort of cold-but-every-morning effect, you know. Old and he had one perfectly white lock of hair that was distinctly attractive. As looked—descriptively—was though someone had dashed a powdered index on his hair—just to the right place."

Madame de Varigny's eyes narrowed, and she gave a quick glance at her hostess. It was something more than a mere exclamation coming interest; it held that was distinctly attractive, as though it sprang from some sudden access of personal feeling.

Jean, hearing it, looked up in some surprise, and the other, meeting her questioning glance, dashed hastily into speech.

"A lock of white hair? But how chic! It should not—thoughtfully—the difficult to discover the identity of anyone with so distinctive a characteristic."

"He is not staying in the hotel, at least," she went on. "He told me he was at a friend's house."

"And he did not enlighten you as to who that friend was?"

Madame de Varigny spoke with an assumption of indifference in her liquid voice.

Jean shook her head, smiling a little to herself. It had been part of the charm of that brief companionship that neither of them had seen again at the hotel the next day to enquire whether he had suffered any ill effects, it would lose all the thrill of discovery. It was the suggestion of incompleteness which flavored the entire episode so pleasantly.

No, on the whole, Jean rather hoped that she would meet the Englishman again—at least, not yet. Some day, perhaps, it might be rather nice if chance brought them together once more. There would be a certain element of romantic fiction about it, should that happen.

"I don't think I am likely to see him again," she said quietly, replying to Madame de Varigny's suggestion. "He told me he was going away tomorrow."

Had it been conceivable, Jean would have said that a flash of disappointment crossed the Countess's face. But it was not so; she merely smiled, and the movements of an unknown Englishman should cause her any excitement of feeling whether pleasant or otherwise. The only feasible explanation was that old little streak of inquisitiveness concerning other people's affairs which appeared to be characteristic of her and which she had before evinced concerning the circumstances of Lady Ann Brennan.

Whatever curiosity she may have felt, however, on this occasion Madame de Varigny refrained from giving expression to it. Apparently dismissing the subject of the Englishman's identity from her mind, she switched the conversation into a fresh channel.

"It is unfortunate that you should have met with such a contretemps today. You will surely feel disposed to dance this evening, after so much fatigue," she observed commiseratingly.

But Jean scouted the notion. With the incompressible resiliency of youth, she felt quite equal to dancing all night if it needs be.

"Mais tout au contraire!" she exclaimed. "I'm practically recovered—at least, I shall be after another half-hour's lazing by this glorious fire. I wonder what heaven-sent inspiration induced Monsieur Vautrin to install a real English fire-place in this room? It's delicious."

The Countess rose, shrugging her expressive shoulders.

Recipe For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

GRAPE-JELLY ROLL

(4 eggs)

1 cup special cake flour, sifted.
1/2 teaspoon baking powder.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
4 eggs, unbeaten.
1/2 cup granulated sugar.
1/2 cup vanilla.

Grape jelly.

Beat four cups measure. Combine half pound butter, and eggs in bowl. Place over smaller bowl of hot water, and beat with rotary egg beater, adding sugar gradually until mixture becomes thick and light-colored. Remove bowl from over hot water. Pour in flour and vanilla. Pour into pan 13 1/2 x 9 1/2 inches, lined with greased paper. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes. Turn from pan at once into cloth covered with powdered sugar. Remove paper. Quickly cut off crisp edges of cake. Spread with jelly and roll. Wrap in cloth until cool.

CRANBERRY DESSERT

1 junket tablet.
1 tablespoon cold water.
1 cup cranberry jelly or marmalade.
1 pint milk.
3 tablespoons sugar.

Prepare the junket according to directions on package. Pour at once into individual dessert glasses and let stand undisturbed in a warm room until firm—about 10 minutes. Then chill. When ready to serve add cranberry jelly or marmalade to each portion. A topping of sweetened whipped cream may be put over the cranberries if desired.

Economic Conference Likely

Governments Would No Doubt Accept Invitation For Next Year

The London Times says that when Prime Minister R. D. Bennett of Canada formally receives his invitation to hold the 'advised' meeting of the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa next year, the National Government will certainly accept it. The suggestion is made, the Times added, that the meeting should not be held too early in the year, in order that all the governments of the Empire might have ample time to make their preparations.

Millions For Dumb Animals

Dumb animals have come into millions. "The money, which will be used for their protection, was furnished by Mrs. Marion R. McConnell, 74, of Chicago who never had a pet of her own during her life. It was estimated that the estate was worth $1,000,000 and that each of the societies would receive about $1,000,000.

Stand By Old Adage

Dr. Carl E. Black, of Jacksonville, Ill., offered the College of Surgeons a plan for grading surgeons according to the death rate among their patients. There is an old saying that declares that a surgeon's mistakes, while lawyers make theirs. It is a fair guess that the surgeons will stand by the old adage.

Stormy Political Life

Ramsay MacDonald Has Had a Career Reading Like Fiction

Ramsay MacDonald was elected in his own constituency because, the Prime Minister's "Ain folk" stood by him in the stormiest hour of his stormy political career.

Born in a fishermen's cottage in Scotland, 61 years ago, Ramsay MacDonald has had a career reading like fiction. Friendless, he went to London and for 10 years drank the bitter waters of poverty, following a literary life. The death of his wife in 1911 was the saddest blow of his life.

Entering Parliament in 1906, Ramsay MacDonald became chairman of the Independent Labor Party. This was in the days when such a step was tantamount to social, if not political exclusion. When the war opened he assailed the Government for having blundered into the conflict. Urging peace by negotiation, and despite his support for recruiting, MacDonald became an out-sider, pacifist and was shunned by all lines of war thought. He lost his seat in the Commons in 1918.

The turn of the political wheel brought MacDonald back to Parliament after the close of the war as head of the growing Labor Party. His pacifism was forgotten, if not forgiven. The wheel took another turn, and Ramsay MacDonald became Premier in January, 1924. After ten years of office, came opposition, until June, 1929, when he formed a new government.

This lasted until last August, when MacDonald, Philip Snowden, James Thomas and ten other Laborites joined the Conservatives and a portion of the Liberal Party in forming the National Government. The people of Sesham placed their stamp of approval on the latest, if not the most sensational step ever taken by Ramsay MacDonald.

An Oil That Is Priced Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was put on the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. It was put up in the form of a small bottle, but as soon as its merits became known it had a Lybolic content for a one, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

Stream Flow Conditions On Prairies

During the month of August, the Dominion Water Power and Hydro-electric Bureau, Department of the Interior, reports that stream flow conditions in southern Alberta and Saskatchewan continued to be extremely low. In the northern sections of Alberta much better conditions were experienced, the flow of the Peace River being slightly above the long term average for the month.

The Value Of Laughter

Good Aid To Health and Longevity

Says New York Reporter

Instead of telling us the mode of living, not usually applied with success to any other individual, by which he has attained to the age of 96 years, Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New York, says that when one is old he should "eat half as much, sleep twice as much, drink three times as much water and laugh four times as much."

This forward-looking wisdom, particularly happy, when it comes from the selected three-acre and ten, is surprisingly learned by the last of the century.

Laughter has been written of laughter. Some hold that it is the mark of the ill-mannered; some would laugh, the desperate alternative of tears. Yet others agree with Carlyle, though he often was, when he says in doctor lectures that "the man who cannot laugh is not only fit for treason, stragles and apostasy, but his whole life is already a treason and a straggle."

One should begin early in the journey to laugh, just in his old age, with laughter multiplied by four, he lacks a good proportion of mirth.

The General Manager,
Imperial Bank of Canada,
TORONTO

We report that we have examined the above condensed Balance Sheet as at October 31st, 1931, and have compared it with the books and vouchers at the Head Office and with the certified returns from the branches. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required and in our opinion the above condensed Balance Sheet discloses the true condition of the Bank. The above condensed Balance Sheet does not include money which has been set aside by the Shareholders from time to time for the purpose of a Pension Fund.
